TRUTH vs. DECEPTION covers the "pandemic" from the planning stages in October of 2019 (just "30 days before the first COVID-19 case was identified in China"), as Event 201, a "global pandemic exercise…was [being] hosted in New York City…by the Johns Hopkins Center for Health Security, in partnership with the World Economic Forum (WEF) and the Bill and Melinda Gates Foundation," to Sam Smith and Kim Petra's ritualistic Grammy Awards performance in early February 2023, and Rihanna's sexually-charged halftime performance at Super Bowl LVII in Glendale, AZ a week later.

These falsely claimed so-called vaccines from the four major pharmaceutical companies were analyzed by Dr. Young:

Pfizer/BioNTech ("Pfizer"); Moderna/Lonza mRNA-1273 ("Moderna"); Vaxzevria by AstraZeneca ("AstraZeneca"); and Janssen by Johnson & Johnson ("Janssen").

If humanity had known what was being injected into their bodies and even their children's body they would had never taken this toxic COVID bioweapon?

I would think not unless they were a "few bricks shy a full load" or wanted themselves suicided, sacrificing themselves and their children on the altar of Big Pharma.

Forcing or coercion of a child into taking this injection is absolute child abuse and unintentional or intentional attempted murder.

Some are saying there is no graphene oxide in the weaponized COVID-19 injections of the vial and blood. Following in the steps of the government funded "FACT CHECKERS", with their propaganda of the real

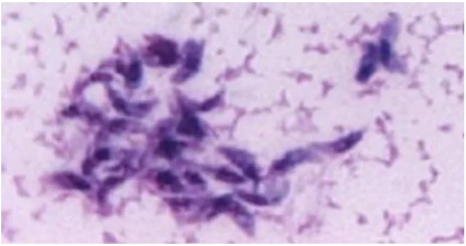
It seems since the rollout of these injections, some well-intended doctors and scientist are far behind of the research by Dr. Young and other true deep researchers like La Quinta Columna. La Ouinta Columa researchers, for whom I have also been following three years, found toxic nanometallic content which are magneticotoxic, cytotoxic and genotoxic to plants, insects, birds, animals, and humans, all life on the planet, which was confirmed by Dr. Young and his team of researchers. Even life-threatening parasites were discovered in one of the "vaccines".



https://rumble.com/v1nuvlg-mega-bombs-deadly-gmo-parasites-are-the-mrna-vectors-patent-review-with-dr..html

The "vaccine" components including graphene oxide among many others are which influenced by radiation sources external to us can create a toxic chemical and radiative soup inside our bodies (Published By The Liberty Beacon) from the Covid bioweapon has put people's lives at risk.

Many will, as I have been saying in my opinion, will die from radiation poison by this injection with graphene oxide, the hydrogel with the insertion of Cesium-137 for the individuals bodies injected with these ingredients to absorb the microwave radiation 5G communications frequencies for tracking, manipulating the mind, and even transmit the frequencies of diseases of compromised destroyed immune systems leading to permanent disability and death.

To go into more detail, you need to understand something very important in this discussion of graphene oxide. Then you will understand why it was so important to produce this warp speed COVID-19 bioweapon, and its connection with the lightning speed of installing 5G cell towers on school roofs, cell towers on grounds in city and rual areas, and 5G weaponized streetlights with 5G WIFI transmitters.

Besides using this bioweapon injected to cause mass permanently disabilities and even maximize the death potential, graphene oxide which has an electrical charge and hydrogel with the insertion of cesium-137 as revealed by Todd Callender, and the self-replicating and self-construction of nano particles and nanotubes to construct an internal WIFI system to communicate with the individual's body with 5G microwave radiation frequencies. Without the ingredients of graphene oxide, the hydrogel, and the Cesium-137 this would not be possible. This is exactly one of the many ingredients that have been undeclared in the bioweapon COVID-19 serum injections.

This is the very reason these 'bad actors' were introducing this new, experimental injection, that was never about viral protection, but as Moderna's website said they were injecting the software of life like a computer system with "plug and play" capabilities like in a computer system. They have or are setting up a way to track those who have been injected who can be controlled by AI with the microwave radiation frequencies.

https://rumble.com/v25lyd2-young-blood-solutions-to-the-pollutions-from-nano-technology.html

About 6 years ago, I learned that they have the frequencies of various viruses, as I have already mentioned, for which they can transmit into those that have the injection with the "software of life" any virus frequency to incapacitate or kill one. A cause of death that would be very hard to identify.

Many of these frequencies were discovered by Royal Rife years ago and were no doubt confiscated by the government military, and no doubt also involving DARPA, as was Tesla's inventions that would have made it possible for US energy independence. FREE ENERGY!

It is my assumption that once the 5G cell towers are fully installed and activated in large, metropolitan areas, that due to the powerful microwave beams coming from every direction possible, will lead to death by radiation poisoning from the microwave oven everyone will be living in. But there again, it will also be covered up as death by a COVID to pacify those wearing their tin foil hats and mask.

With every COVID inoculation injection going in, the toxic substances keep accumulating in the body, gradually destroying the natural innate immune system leading to an early death of what the globalist consider them, as Henry Kissinger called them, "Useless Eaters."

Part of Bill Gates TED conference talk in 2011 was where he alluded to the decreasing world population and said: "Now if we do a real good job with healthcare and vaccines, we could reduce the population by 10 to 15 percent." Well, if you take 8-billion people times 15% you get 1-billion, 2 hundred million eliminated by the healthcare system and vaccines.

THE REAL BILL GATES

https://rumble.com/v24scf6-who-is-bill-gates.html

But, Bill Gates plan appears that it will exceed his expectations as scientist are predicting the deaths of 2 billion in the next two years and more billions following. A prediction of millions dying from myocarditis and pericarditis alone is projected. All being planned as part of the globalist depopulation agenda to come to fruition by 2025 per www.degeal.com funded as in a screen capture on their website pictured here:

The Deagel corporation is a minor branch of US military intelligence, one of the many secretive organizations which collects data for high-level decision-making purposes and prepares confidential briefing documents for agencies like the National Security Agency, the United Nations, and the World Bank.

It is known, for example, to have contributed to a Stratfor report on North Korea. With this kind of pedigree, Deagel should be seen as a legitimate player in the intelligence community and not merely a disinformation asset.

If so, then it must be assumed that its population predictions for 2025, as well as its industrial output predictions on a nation-by-nation basis, are based on strategic assumptions which are shared and well understood by other players in the intelligence community.

Abolish the White Race

SEPTEMBER-OCTOBER 2002

"Make no mistake about it: we intend to keep bashing the dead white males, and the live ones, and the females too, until the social construct known as 'the white race' is destroyed—not 'deconstructed' but destroyed."

Every group within white America has at one time or another advanced its particular and narrowly defined interests at the expense of black people as a race. That applies to labor unionists, ethnic groups, college students, schoolteachers, taxpayers, and white women. Race Traitor will not abandon its focus on whiteness, no matter how vehement the pleas and how virtuously oppressed those doing the pleading. The editors meant it when they replied to a reader, "Make no mistake about it: we intend to keep bashing the dead white males, and the live ones, and the females too, until the social construct known as 'the white race' is destroyed—not 'deconstructed' but destroyed."

Introduction and historical perspective

More than 150years ago, British physician T. W. Jones asked the question, "Why does the blood circulating in the vessels not coagulate?".[1] though a general answer to this question is now obvious, the biochemical mechanisms involved in how the blood coagulates (clots) are complex and varied, and all the intricacies have not yet been explained. A. Trousseau recognized that the blood of cancer patients is in a hyper-coagulable state in the process of coagulation, even while confined in the blood vessels.[2] The name given to this discovery is still in use today, as "Trousseau's Syndrome".[2] Early in his career, Rudolph Virchow, the Father of Pathology, was interested in thrombosis and embolism. He speculated that intravascular blood could be altered so it would clot as a result of a stimulus too weak to clot normal blood.[3] In 1856 Virchow delivered a lecture setting forth this concept.

Although the concept of partial clotting within vessels reaches back to the beginnings of modern medicine, much of the discovery of its biochemical mechanisms-the activation of clotting factors-has been left to chance. The admission of a patient to the hospital with an unceplained bleeding disorder challenged researchers to discover the cause of hemorrhaging. Analysis of blood from normal persons helped in the study of the patient with the blood disorder. A new clotting factor was hereby discovered which was missing from the patient's blood. For this reason, several clotting factors have been named after the individuals in which they were missing: e.g., Christmas factor (factor IX),[4] Hageman factor (factor XII).[4]

In this article, the causes of pathological (intravascular) clotting will be described, as will various methods of detecting this condition, especially a blood test I call the Mycotoxin Oxidative Stress Test (MOST).

The mechanics of blood coagulation

Blood clotting is a highly detailed chemical-mechanism involving many distinct components. The problem for the hematologist has been to understand it at the biochemical level. Undoubtedly, efforts to fully understand blood clotting will continue for many more years.

Recalling Antione Bechamp's[5] and Gunther Enderlein's[6] research into the sub cellular living elements and combining this with what is known of colloidal flocculation,[7] it is suggested that the clotting of blood begins with the end-linking (polymerizing) of the fundamental protein unit called by Be champ the microzyma.[5] A chain of these living units constitutes fibrinogen, which is still dispersed 9micro-hetergenous0 in the blood, and it may or may not be further processed. If processing continues, it will be either by continued end-linking or by cross-linking. End-linked fibrinogen is referred to here as fibrin monomer, which I have suggested is a repair protein also dispersed in the blood. Due to a number of blood clotting factors, the process may continue until the excess fibrin monomer and/or until fibrin becomes excessively end-linked.

Cross-linking the polymerized strands to form a three-dimensional network results in what is called the hard clot (fibrin - the major protein of clotting blood). Factor XIII, which instigates the forming of these blood networks. Is always present but latent in the blood, and must be activated before the formation can occur. Persons who are producing fibrin monomer or excessively linked fibrinogen are said to be in a hyper-coagulable state, while those having diminished ability to form clots are in a hypo-coagulated state. It is the activation of the colloidal clotting factors which is so complex. Blood clotting may occur through many pathways and be initiated by many different stimuli. Regardless of initiation factors, the process is a sequence of events in which the activation of one factor triggers another, until, after a series of discrete steps, fibrin is formed.

When blood is clotted prematurely, and the factors involved are consumed (incorporated into) the body recognizes a deficiency of clotting agents and generates more. Thus, people with a tendency to clot excessively will alternate between a hyper coagulable state and a hypo-coagulatable state. When in the hypo coagulated state, such people hemorrhage until the deficient clotting factors are replaced.[4] When only fibrin monomer or excessively linked fibrinogen is formed (no cross-linking), it is quite subtle and may go undetected. It may be detected by a change in blood viscosity (sedimentation rate), by the Mycotoxic Oxidative Stress Test (described later), or by other more subtle means. If strands of fibrinogen are cross-linked, however, a suggicient amount of insoluble precipitate of fires may result, and these can be detected microscopically using a phase contrast and dark-field microscopy in prepared slides of fresh tissue or blood. An excessive formation of fibrin leads to an impairment in circulation, and eventual organ failure usually results.[8]

With this background, we are in a position to consider a standard medical term: disseminated intravascular coagultion (DIC).[7] This term encompasses the hyper coagulable state, I refer to as pathological blood coagulation which consists of both insoluble and excess dispersed polymers of colloidal proteins.

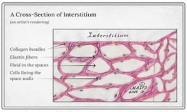
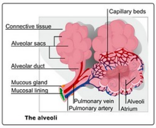
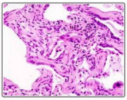
Abstract
Interstitial lung disease (IFLD), or diffuse parenchymal lung disease (DPLD), is a group of lung diseases affecting the Interstitium (the interstitial fluids or space around the alveoli (air sacs of the lungs) [1,2].



It concerns alveolar epithelium, pulmonary capillary endothelium, basement membrane, and perivascular and perilymphatic tissues. It occurs when metabolic, dietary, respiratory and environmental acids injure the lung tissues that triggers an abnormal healing response. Ordinarily, the body generates just the right amount of tissue to repair acid damage, but in interstitial lung disease, the repair process goes awry because of the acidic pH (ideal healing takes place at a pH of 7.365) of the interstitial fluids that effects the normal healing of the tissue around the air sacs (alveoli) and therefore becomes scarred and thickened [3].





Micrograph of usual interstitial pneumonia (UIP). UIP is the most common pattern of interstitial pneumonia (a type of interstitial lung disease) and usually represents pulmonary fibrosis caused by decompensated acidosis of the interstitial fluids of the largest organ of the human body - the Interstitium. H&E stain. Autopsy specimen.

This makes it more difficult for oxygen to pass into the bloodstream. The term ILD is used to distinguish these diseases from obstructive airways diseases but the cause of all lung disease is due to decompensated acidosis of the interstitial fluids (pH is below 7.2) that is systemic although affecting the weakest area of the lungs. These weaknesses can be attributed to lifestyle and dietary choices.

There are specific types of interstitial lung disease in children. The acronym child is used for this group of diseases and is derived from the English name, Children's Interstitial Lung Diseases – child [4].

Prolonged interstitial lung disease may result in pulmonary fibrosis, but this is not always the case. Pulmonary fibrosis is specifically caused by the increase of acids in the interstitial fluids of the lung due to an inverted way of living, eating, drinking, breathing, thinking, feeling and believing. Interstitial lung disease of the Interstitium is associated with typical findings both radiographic (basal and pleural-based fibrosis with honeycombing) and pathologic (Temporally and spatially heterogeneous fibrosis, histopathologic honeycombing,

What Causes Oxygen Deprivation of the Blood(DIC) and Then Lungs(SARS - CoV 2 & 12)?

Robert O Young*, Galina Migalko

Universal Medical Imaging Group, USA

Abstract

Oxygen deprivation in the blood and then lungs is the result of pathological blood coagulation or Disseminated Intravascular Coagulation (DIC) involving a cascade of protein factors leading to the excessive aggregation or symplastism of the erythrocytes or red blood cells caused by several acidic contributing environmental, metabolic, respiratory and dietary factors [1].

Introduction:

The alveolus of the lung (plural: alveoli, from Latin alveus, "little cavity"), is a tiny structure within the lungs measuring approximately 200 micrometers, or just a fraction of a centimeter. These tiny alveoli are bunched together in grape-like clusters to form alveolar sacs. On the surface of the alveoli are networks of tiny blood vessels called capillaries (Figure 1). It is through these tiny capillaries that airway oxygen from the air you inhale diffuses into the blood stream as a result of partial pressure. At the same time, carbon dioxide, the waste product of respiration, moves from the capillaries into the alveoli and out through the airways of the lungs where it is blown out with the next exhalation [2].

When you are unable to inhale sufficient airway atmospheric oxygen (O_2), or if your blood or body cells are incapable of transferring or using oxygen properly, you can become hypoxic, or low oxygen in your organs, glands and tissues, or hypoxemic, with oxygen in your red blood cells. These two conditions are caused by oxygen deprivation due to pathological blood coagulation which is extremely hazardous to your health if allowed to continue untreated (Figure 2). If you have COPD, interstitial lung disease or any another acute or chronic breathing condition like asthma, your body will not be able to absorb airway oxygen or diffuse sufficient amounts into your blood or tissues. Without oxygen delivery to your body cells that make up your organs, glands and tissues the normal cell function is compromised and your health will be at serious risk [3].

Discussion:

Why the blood cannot pass into the alveolar sacs of the lungs?

One of the purposes of the red blood cells is to remove highly toxic and acidic cellular metabolic waste in the form of carbon dioxide and lactic acid and to pick up oxygen for delivery to cells for normal functioning. The process is called cellular respiration or oxygenation which takes place in the alveolar sacs of the lungs.

In order for the red blood cells to remove acidic metabolic waste and to pick up life giving oxygen they must pass through the pulmonary vein and then into the capillary pools. If the red blood cells are in pathological coagulation or aggregation there is no way to enter. Why? Because the entry into the capillary venules that branch off from the pulmonary vein measure 3 to 5 microns (1 micron is 1/25,000 of an inch - See Micrograph 1) and a single red blood cell measures 7 microns which makes it impossible for the red blood cell to enter the capillary venules if they are aggregated or coagulated into groups of red blood cells! [4]

When red blood cells group or clot together into a fibrin net, a clotting protein created when there is injury to the cell membrane and/or endothelial cells that protect the lining of blood vessels, (See Picture 2) the red blood cells cannot enter into the pulmonary vein and then into the capillary pools to release their acidic carbon dioxide waste and pick up oxygen in the alveolus of the lungs (Figure 3) [5].

Pathological blood coagulation or disseminated intravascular blood coagulation (DIC) inside the pulmonary vein will prevent the free passage of red blood cells into the alveoli of the lungs via the pulmonary capillaries (Figure 4). Erythrocytes or red blood cells must go into the pulmonary capillaries single file. If they cannot pass into the pulmonary capillaries of the lung to

Abstract

Cystic fibrosis (CF) [1,2] and Pulmonary Adenocarcinoma (PAC) [3] have similar symptomologies and are chronic, progressive, and frequently fatal acidic conditions of the respiratory system (lungs), lymphatic system (lymph nodes), intestines, pancreas, urinary tract system, reproductive organs and the skin as the alkaloid glands (the salivary glands, stomach, and small and large intestines) produce and secrete alkaline compounds, such as sodium bicarbonate to buffer and preserve the alkaline design of the body and the specific organs and glands affected. These metabolic and dietary acidic conditions resulting in the build-up of mucous [3] can affect any organ or organ system but primarily affects the respiratory, lymphatic system, digestive, and reproductive tracts in children and young adults with CF and the lungs and surrounding lymph nodes in PAC. I have suggested from my own clinical research that both of these conditions are the result of latent tissue acidosis (LTA) in the interstitial fluids of the Interstitium or the fluids that surround every cell, created from metabolism, diet, thoughts and environment and may be successfully treated and reversed with an alkaline lifestyle and diet (ALD) [4].

Introduction and Historical Perspective

According to the Cystic Fibrosis Foundation, about 30,000 Americans have CF. This condition occurs mostly in whites whose ancestors came from northern Europe, although it cuts across all races and ethnic groups. About 3,500 babies are born with this acidic condition each year in the United States. Moreover, about one in every 30 Americans suffer from CF [1,3].

Nearly 40% of lung cancers in the US are adenocarcinoma, which usually originates in peripheral lung tissue [5]. Most cases of adenocarcinoma are associated with smoking; however, among people who have smoked fewer than 100 cigarettes in their lifetimes ("never-smokers") [6], adenocarcinoma is the most common form of lung cancer [7]. Its incidence has been increasing in many developed Western nations in the past few decades, where it has become the most common major type of lung cancer in smokers (replacing squamous cell lung carcinoma) and in lifelong non-smokers [3]. According to the Nurses' Health Study, the risk of adenocarcinoma of the lung increases substantially after a long duration of previous tobacco smoking, with a previous smoking duration of 30 to 40 years giving a relative risk of approximately 2.4 compared to never-smokers, and a duration of more than 40 years giving a relative risk of approximately 5 [8].

Signs and Symptoms of CF and PAC

CF and PAC have similar symptomologies and are often accompanied by the following signs and symptoms:

- Thick, viscous mucus in the lungs caused by the glandular secretion of sodium bicarbonate in the chelation of excess dietary and/or metabolic acids [3,9,10].

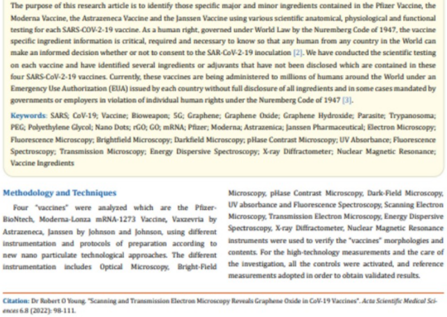
Abstract

Currently there are four major pharmaceutical companies who manufacture a SARS-CoV-2 now called SARS-CoV-19 vaccine. These manufactures and their vaccine are Pfizer--BioNTech mRNA Vaccine, the Moderna-Lonza mRNA-1273 Vaccine, the Serum Institute Oxford Astrazeneca Vaccine and the Janssen COVID-19 Vaccine, manufactured by Janssen Biotech Inc., a Janssen Pharmaceutical Company of Johnson and Johnson, a recombinant, replication-incompetent adenovirus type 26 expressing the SARS-CoV-2 spike protein [1]. The intended purpose of these vaccines are to provide immunity from the so-called infectious novel coronavirus or SARS-CoV-2 virus now called the SARS-CoV-19. These four pharmaceutical companies have not provided complete FDA disclosure on their vaccine box, insert fact sheet or label for many of the major and/or minor ingredients contained within these so-called vaccines.



The purpose of this research article is to identify those specific major and minor ingredients contained in the Pfizer Vaccine, the Moderna Vaccine, the Astrazeneca Vaccine and the Janssen Vaccine using various scientific anatomical, physiological and functional testing for each SARS-COV-2-19 vaccine. As a human right, governed under World Law by the Nuremberg Code of 1947, the vaccine specific ingredient information is critical, required and necessary to know so that any human from any country in the World can make an informed decision whether or not to consent to the SAR-CoV-2-19 inoculation [2]. We have conducted the scientific testing on each vaccine and have identified several ingredients or adjuvants that have not been disclosed which are contained in these four SARS-CoV-2-19 vaccines. Currently, these vaccines are being administered to millions of humans around the World under an Emergency Use Authorization (EUA) issued by each country without full disclosure of all ingredients and in some cases mandated by governments or employers in violation of individual human rights under the Nuremberg Code of 1947 [3].

Methodology and Techniques

Four "vaccines" were analyzed which are the Pfizer-BioNtech, Moderna-Lonza mRNA-1273 Vaccine, Vaxzevria by Astrazeneca, Janssen by Johnson and Johnson, using different instrumentation and protocols of preparation according to new nano particulate technological approaches. The different instrumentation includes Optical Microscopy, Bright-Field Microscopy, pHase Contrast Microscopy, Dark-Field Microscopy, UV absorbance and Fluorescence Spectroscopy, Scanning Electron Microscopy, Transmission Electron Microscopy, Energy Dispersive Spectroscopy, X-ray Diffractometer, Nuclear Magnetic Resonance instruments were used to verify the "vaccines" morphologies and contents. For the high-technology measurements and the care of the investigation, all the controls were activated, and reference measurements adopted in order to obtain validated results.
